This document presents the official teaching evaluations Hao received from the courses she took Teaching Assistant (TA) roles at the School of Advanced International Studies (SAIS), Johns Hopkins University. The table summarizes the questions SAIS used to evaluate TA's work in the following classes:

International Political Economy of Emerging Markets	Spring 2022
Applied Econometrics	Fall 2021, Spring 2022
Econometrics	Summer 2021

The second part contains original written feedback from students of all the courses Hao has worked as a TA. Please note that as Spring 2021 semester are during covid-19 pandemic, the school only asked students to provide written feedback instead of rating.

Unedited students' feedbacks in random order:

• Hao was a fantastic TA. Her lectures were consistently detailed, well prepared, and offered examples and data set regressions that were in addition to what was already provided in the unit. She really knows her stuff and has a deep level of understanding of econometrics that really helped me as a student learn and navigate this course. Her availability, her provision of additional resources and documents, and her review lectures were exceptional.

• I wanted to say thank you for your work this summer!

• Hao Lyu is a great TA and very responsible and nice!

• Hao was the best TA I have ever encountered at SAIS. She was really passionate about econometrics and did her best to answer every question that I asked during office hours. I want to say "Thank you" to her for every Thursday afternoon that she spent with me to answer my questions.

• Hao did a great job - extremely difficult concepts, so this was one of the harder classes to TA

• Hao was a fantastic TA!!! Thank you for all your help during this course Hao!!

• Hao is an excellent TA! I'm very grateful for her help!

• Hao was a great TA! She was always very helpful and was clearly passionate about the subject matter. She was always cordial and willing to take the time to talk through things. Her weekly review sessions were also great and you could tell she cared about students' success. I thought Natalie, however, was subpar. If you sought her help she would obviously help you, but she seemed too busy to be a TA. She forgot to record her final review session which was disappointing. I understand everyone makes mistakes but she could have at least taken the time to re-record her session by herself. This would have shown that she actually cared. Ultimately, students who weren't able to attend her session live were disadvantaged and had to meet with her individually afterwards (and she made it clear that she didn't want to spend too much time reviewing things with us). I thought this was unfair and unacceptable. Generally, I felt like she wouldn't go the extra mile for students -- which was the complete opposite of Hao. When picking TAs, I think it's important to consider students who not only got an A in the class, but who also have a clear passion for helping other students understand the material. Hao had this in abundance; Natalie did not, unfortunately.

• Hao was such a treat and so nice and accommodating. Natalie forgetting to record a review session was really a bummer for me because I was looking forward to using that to study.

• Hao was very helpful, and her TA sections and materials helped me a lot when working on my assignments and preparing for exams.

• The TAs were both great and their discussions/lectures were helpful in doing the homework.

• TAs are helpful to give more practical explanation on the lecture video. They also give review sessions which also help me to review my mid-term and final exam.

• Both TAs were readily available to answer questions and provided guidance. Both were very helpful throughout the semester!

• The TAs were one the reason that made this class a successful one in learning and applying the material: they were always available for office hours, they would address any issues faced by students, and they would find ways that best highlights the key points of each module.

• TAs were amazing - both were great but specifically loved Hao.

• The TAs were really flexible and responded to students by changing office hours and TA sessions to accommodate more students.

• Hao was very helpful and super responsive whenever I had a question or issue.

• Hao and Natalie were great TAs. The material is fairly challenging so having a good TA is essential to this class.

• Hao was super helpful and responsive. She was very organized in ensuring each TA session was uploaded to make it inclusive for people who could not attend the live sessions. Natalie was also responsive to questions via emails. Unfortunately, she did not have a habit of recording her TA sessions including the one to review a final exam, which was a disadvantage for a fully online course because some students had other exams to do at the same time of the final TA session and some lived in a difficult time zone.
